Daniel M. Snyder

Redskins Owner

Since acquiring the Washington Redskins in 1999, Daniel M. Snyder, 39, has consistently made the bold move in working to return the franchise to its glory. Most recently, and most prominently, he persuaded coaching legend Joe Gibbs to return as leader of the team. A member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame, Gibbs was the architect of the Redskins' four Super Bowl appearances — and three victories — of the 1980s and 90s.

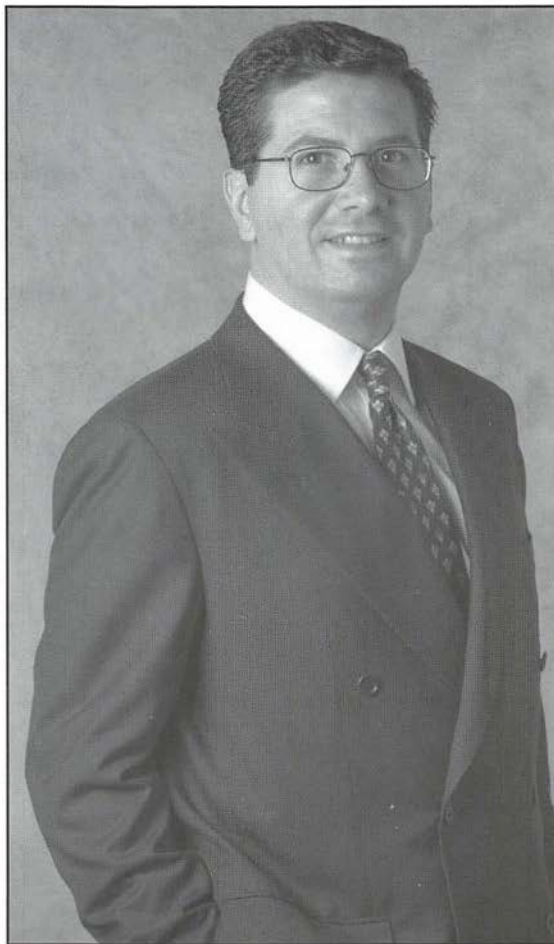

"In Joe Gibbs we have a proven winner and leader," Snyder said. "What better Redskin could there be to return the team to glory."

Working hand-in-hand with the Snyder, Gibbs rapidly recruited perhaps the NFL's most-experienced coaching staff. Free agency and the draft both provided the opportunity to acquire players who could quickly be molded to Gibbs' needs.

Snyder's efforts are not confined to the Redskins' personnel side.

Continued renovation and expansion of FedEx Field — the NFL's largest-capacity stadium — brought the number of seats to nearly 92,000. New seats and suites were added, and immediately sold out. The team continues to be ranked by Forbes magazine as the NFL's most valuable sports franchise. The Redskins also are recognized throughout the NFL for their innovative marketing direction. Redskins' fans continue to fill FedEx Field, once again delivering the league-high attendance for the 2003 season. The team has sold out every home game since 1968.

Snyder was founder, Chairman and CEO of Snyder Communications, Inc., (at the time he was the youngest-ever CEO of a New York Stock Exchange company). From its launch in 1985 the company grew to a global organization of 12,000 employees, 77 offices in 16 countries, and more than $1 billion in annual revenues. The company's leading role in providing over 200 of the Fortune 500 client base with targeted marketing solutions, including advertising and marketing services, led to its acquisition in March 2000 by the French marketing firm Havas for more than $2.3 billion, at the time the largest such merger in the history of the advertising/marketing industry.

Snyder's interests outside the Redskins are varied. He continues to serve Ventiv Health and McLeod USA, both public companies, as a member of their Boards of Directors. He remains active in the management of the National Football League, including serving as a member of the Broadcast Committee and Business Ventures Committee. Snyder also is active in numerous private business ventures, both as an investor and an advisor to management.

Snyder is one of the Washington area's most prominent community leaders. He devotes most of his public philanthropic time to Washington's Children's National Medical Center and the Center for Missing and Exploited Children, where he serves on both Boards of Directors. His support enabled construction of the Snyder Family Emergency Medicine and Trauma Center at Children's Hospital. He also funded construction of the Daniel M. Snyder and Family Communication Center at the Center for Missing and Exploited Children. Each day the Center handles hundreds of calls from around the nation from law enforcement organizations, parents of missing children, runaways seeking help and people responding to the Center's well-known awareness campaigns on behalf of missing children.

Snyder founded and remains the driving force behind the Washington Redskins Leadership Council, a unique partnership between the team and prominent Washington-area business executives such as J.W. Marriott, Jr., CEO of Marriott International; Fred Smith, Chairman, President and CEO of FedEx Corp; Donald E. Graham, Chairman of the Board of The Washington Post Company; and Mitchell Caplan, CEO of E*TRADE Financial, among many others. Since 2000, the Leadership Council has drawn on the prominence and leverage of the Redskins organization to fund and further community projects such as summer reading programs, community-based redevelopment initiatives and renovation of high school football facilities throughout Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C. To date, the Leadership Council has enabled the upgrade of 10 football fields, at a cost of over $1 million. In 2003, the Leadership Council launched an initiative to place "academic coaches" in high schools throughout Washington, D.C., to help student-athletes improve classroom performance. In its first season, the academic coach at Anacostia High School was credited with increasing the overall GPA of the football team by 33 percent.

Snyder also serves on the Board of Directors of Ted Forstmann's Parents in Charge, as well as the Washington Board of Trade, and is a member of the Business Executives for National Security and the Executive Leadership Cabinet for the Martin Luther King, Jr., National Memorial Foundation Project.

Since the early days of his business career, from his home office as a teenager to creation of Snyder Communications in Bethesda, Maryland, to becoming the primary owner of the Washington Redskins, Daniel M. Snyder has counted Gerry and Arlette Snyder, Michele Snyder and Fred Drasner among his closest advisors and supporters. They comprise the first co-owners of the Redskins.

Before launching a business initiative or making a critical business decision, they are the key individuals Daniel Snyder has turned to as partners, advisors, and confidants.

Drasner was the first in the business world to recognize the potential of Daniel Snyder when he arranged the initial financing of Snyder Communications. The two have since engaged in several other joint business ventures.

A native of Brooklyn, NY, Drasner is a self-made man with tremendous drive and ambition. In the latter two qualities, as well as in his vision, he has found a great affinity with the Redskins owner.

In addition to his role with the Redskins, Drasner also directs several businesses, including Applied Graphics Technologies, U.S. News and World Report, the New York Daily News, and Fast Company magazine, with combined revenues of over $1.3 billion.

Daniel Snyder's sister Michele, a founder of Snyder Communications, shares his spirit. Her creativity, operational skills, and business instincts have played an instrumental role in the success of Team Snyder over the years.

A calm and steadying influence has been the contributions of Gerry and Arlette Snyder, parents of the Redskins owner and Michele. A journalist and author of more than two dozen books, Gerry Snyder was editor-in-chief of Snyder Communications during the early years of the company. Gerry Snyder died in 2003 at age 69. The team training facility at Redskins Park has been named in his memory (see page 307). Arlette Snyder continues to maintain the family ownership position in the team.

Redskins Firsts

■ The Washington Redskins became the first and only team in NFL history to win a World Championship in their first year by defeating the Chicago Bears 28-21 to claim the 1937 title. On February 13, 1937, the National Football League approved the transfer of the Boston Redskins franchise to Washington, D.C. The Redskins, in their first season in Washington, compiled an 8-3 record on the road to the NFL title.

■ On September 16, 1937, the Redskins played their first game in D.C. Washington was victorious over the New York Giants at a flood-lighted Griffin Stadium, 13-3.

■ On August 9, 1938, the Washington Redskins formed the NFL's first marching band. Later, on August 17, 1938, "Hail to the Redskins" made its debut as the first fight song by any team in the NFL.

■ In 1938, the Redskins became the first team in the NFL to have its own radio network carry all its games.

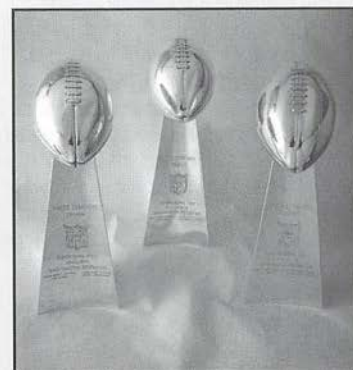

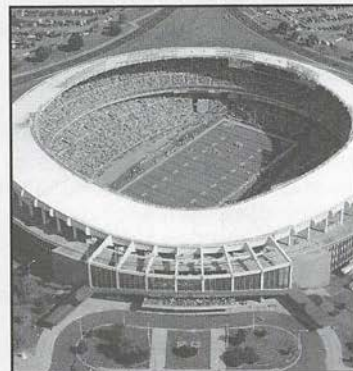

■ In 1950, the Washington Redskins became the first team in the NFL to have all its games televised locally. On September 26, 1954, the Redskins became the first team in the NFL to have its game televised regionally, when their contest at San Francisco was televised back to Washington and throughout the South.

■ The first regular season game at DC stadium (re-named RFK Stadium in 1968) was played on October 1, 1961.

■ It didn't come easy, but on December 17, 1961 the Redskins finally got their first DC Stadium win in the '61 season finale with Dallas. Dickie James scored four touchdowns, a Redskins single-game record (Larry Brown tied it in 1973), to lead the Redskins to a 34-24 victory. The win ended a 23-game winless streak for the Redskins dating back to the 1960 season.

■ The Washington Redskins became the first and only team in NFL history to win three Super Bowls (XVII, XXII, XXVI) with three different quarterbacks (Joe Theismann, Doug Williams, Mary Rypien).

■ On September 14, 1997, the Redskins opened their new stadium, now called FedExField, with a thrilling 19-13 overtime victory over the Arizona Cardinals in front of a record crowd of Washington fans.

Joe Gibbs

Head Coach and Team President

21st NFL Season/13th Redskins

On January 7, 2004, Redskins Owner Daniel Snyder named Hall of Fame Coach Joe Gibbs as Head Coach and team president of the franchise, welcoming back one of the most respected and successful figures in Washington Redskins and Washington sports history. Gibbs brings back his relentless work ethic, demanding leadership style, and tradition of excellence and respect that defined his tenure with the team for 12 glorious years.

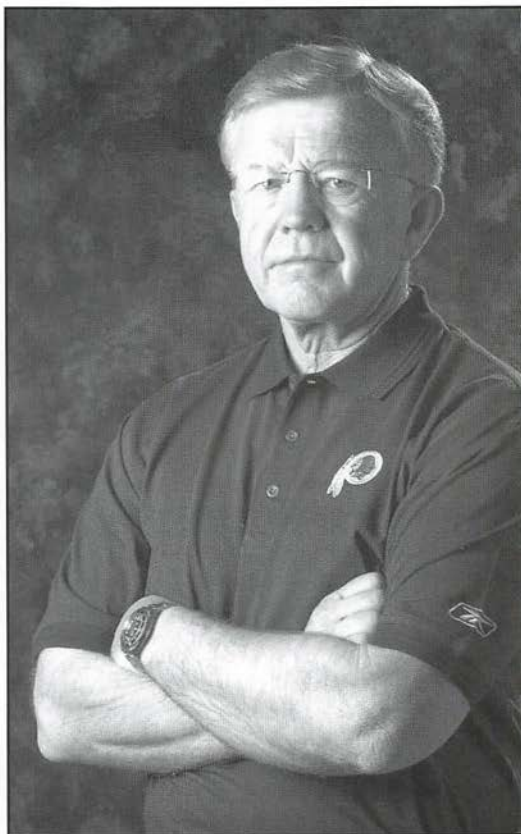

Gibbs, who coached the team from 1981 to 1992, turned the Redskins into an NFL dynasty during his first tenure. He led the Redskins to four Super Bowls — winning three titles — and accumulated a 124-60 record during regular-season play and an amazing 16-5 post-season record (.789 win percentage). No Redskins coach in history has enjoyed such success on the playing field.

"Joe Gibbs helped define what the Washington Redskins stand for — integrity, hard work, determination, winning and championships," said Redskins owner Daniel Snyder. "Who better to set our strategy and lead the Redskins back to championship glory."

Among NFL coaches, Gibbs holds a special place as well. His 140 wins is the 14th best in NFL history, accomplished in just 12 seasons, four seasons less than his 13 counterparts. His all-time win percentage of .683 remains the best among all NFL coaches with more than 125 wins.

Eleven years later, Coach Gibbs returns to a new training facility in Redskins Park, a new stadium in FedExField and by his own acknowledgement, a lot of catching up to do to get ready for the 2004 NFL season. "This is all new," said Gibbs on his first day back as Head Coach. "We're trying to move forward with our players and a whole new group of people. From this point on, the past doesn't buy us much, other than relationships."

Armed with one of the most experienced coaching staffs in the league, including Joe Bugel (Assistant Head Coach — Offense) and Gregg Williams (Assistant Head Coach — Defense), a solid core of young players and significant acquisitions during 2004 free agency, Gibbs is ready for the challenge of the upcoming season.

"It takes teamwork," said Gibbs. "It's not one person. I'm a small part of it. It's all of us together, every single person of the Washington Redskins. That's what it's going to take for us to win."

Gibbs took the helm of the Washington franchise as a rookie head coach in 1981 and turned the Redskins into a winning machine. After just his second season, he led his Redskins team to Super Bowl XVII, beating the Miami Dolphins 27-17. He returned to the Championship game in 1983 and was named NFL Coach of the Year. The Redskins went on to win Super Bowls XXII and XXVI under his watch, building a tradition of excellence that has remained unmatched to this day. Three coaches have won three Super Bowls in NFL history. Only one, Joe Gibbs, has done it with three different quarterbacks, spread out over a nine-year period.

An offensive innovator, Gibbs utilized both the short and long passing games, getting the most out of offensive talent such as quarterbacks Mark Rypien and Joe Theismann, and receivers Art Monk, Gary Clark and Ricky Sanders during his first tenure with the team. He popularized three-receiver sets and the trend of using an H-back as a way of neutralizing opponents' pass rush efforts. His dominating offensive line, tagged the "Hogs" during the late 1980s and early 90s was a constant throughout the Gibbs' years, and included mainstay leaders such as Russ Grimm, Mark May and Joe Jacoby. They opened up holes for some of the Redskins' most successful running backs, including Hall of Famer John Riggins and new running backs coach Earnest Byner.

In all, Gibbs' Redskins recorded 11 winning seasons during his 12 years, taking the team to the playoffs eight times. In the history of the NFL, only Vince Lombardi and Weeb Ewbank have had better playoff win percentages.

He began his coaching career at San Diego State, his alma mater, under Don Coryell. He joined the Aztecs staff in 1964 as a graduate assistant and coached the offensive line during a period when the team won 27 of 31 games, including an 11-0 mark in 1966.

In 1967, Gibbs joined Bill Peterson's staff at Florida State as offensive line coach and was part of a 15-4-1 record over two seasons. In 1969, John McKay brought Gibbs to USC and the Trojans went 15-4-1 over the next two years. The winning ways continued when Gibbs joined Frank Broyles' staff at Arkansas and the Razorbacks recorded a 14-8-1 mark over the 1971-72 seasons.

Gibbs and Coryell were reunited in 1973 when the latter named Gibbs offensive backfield coach for the St. Louis Cardinals. From 1973-77, the Cardinals were 42-27-1, earning two NFC East titles.

In 1978, Gibbs became Tampa Bay's offensive coordinator under McKay. After one season with the Buccaneers, Coryell called again in 1979 and tabbed him as offensive coordinator at San Diego. In two seasons as the pilot for "Air Coryell," Gibbs helped the Chargers win two AFC West titles behind the record-setting passing of Dan Fouts. His brilliant coaching career then caught the attention of Jack Kent Cooke, who named Gibbs the Washington Redskins' 17th head coach on January 13, 1981.

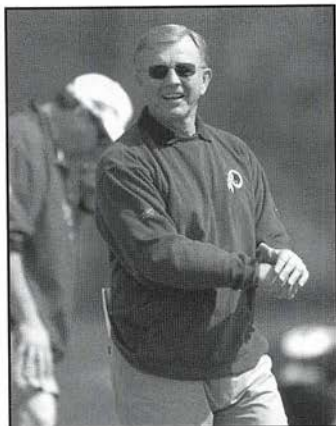

Gibbs took his rightful place among other NFL legends in 1996, when he was inducted to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

His leadership skills have not been relegated to just the football playing field. In 1993, he left the Redskins and the NFL at the pinnacle of his career, looking to spend more time with his family and his NASCAR race team, established in 1991. He quickly established Joe Gibbs Racing into a force to be reckoned with on the NASCAR circuit, assembling a team that would go on to find success similar to what he achieved in the NFL. In just his second year, Gibbs' team, with driver Dale Jarrett, won the Daytona 500, the sport's premier event. He would go on to recruit drivers Bobby Labonte and Tony Stewart, both of whom have flourished with Joe Gibbs Racing, taking the NASCAR season-long championship Winston Cup crowns in 2000 (Labonte) and 2002 (Stewart).

His success on the playing field and the race track is matched by his involvement in the community. Gibbs is the founder of Youth for Tomorrow, a home for troubled teenage boys and girls in Bristow, Virginia. The foundation houses 20-40 children year-round, with an extensive staff that teaches, cares and instills in teens principles they can use to guide themselves when they leave the home. Over the years, Gibbs' personal commitment and time at the home has turned hundreds of kids away from drugs, alcohol and crime, while demonstrating to them that they are each a valuable and important asset to this world.

Gibbs makes his permanent home in Charlotte, NC, with his wife Pat, and enjoys what free time he has with his family. His oldest son, J.D., remains in North Carolina at the helm of Joe Gibbs Racing, with his wife Melissa and sons, Miller, Jackson and Jason. Coy Gibbs joins his father on the Redskins' coaching staff this year, and is joined in Virginia by his wife, Heather, and their two children: son, Ty, and daughter, Elle.

Gibbs in the Postseason

In 1991, Joe Gibbs joined Don Shula (6), Tom Landry (6), Chuck Noll (4) and Bud Grant (4) as the only head coaches in the NFL to make four or more appearances in the Super Bowl. His three Super Bowl wins surpasses Vince Lombardi, Shula and Landry, tying him with Bill Walsh for the second most victories by a coach in the league Championship. Chuck Noll won four with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Gibbs became the only coach in NFL history to win three Super Bowls with three different starting quarterbacks. He won Super Bowl XVII (27-17) over Miami with Joe Theismann, Super Bowl XXII (42-10) over Denver with Doug Williams, and Super Bowl XXVI (37-24) with Mark Rypien.

In addition, his 12 seasons during his first tenure as Redskins head coach brought the team to eight playoff appearances, five division titles, four NFC Championships and four Super Bowl appearances.

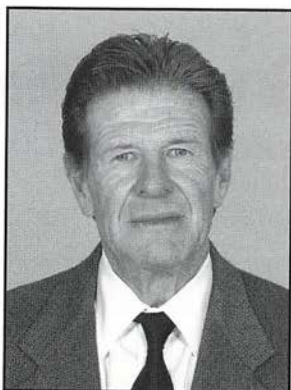

His 16-5 (.762) playoff record remains among the NFL's best, and his 16 playoff wins are the second most among NFL coaches (Don Shula has 17). Among coaches with 100 career victories, he owns the third best mark in NFL history.

Joe Bugel

Assistant Head Coach Offense

27th NFL Season/10th Redskins

The Washington Redskins and Head Coach Joe Gibbs added another familiar name to the coaching staff, naming Joe Bugel assistant head coach for offense. The 26-year NFL coaching veteran has a long and storied history with the Redskins that includes building the legendary "Hogs," the Redskins offensive line of the 1980s. Bugel will once again oversee the offensive line, and looks to build similar success to that he enjoyed during his first tour with the team. His extensive experience, infectious enthusiasm and proven leadership will be a great asset to the Redskins coaching staff.

Bugel is well known to Redskins fans from his last coaching tour with the burgundy and gold, also under Head Coach Joe Gibbs. From 1981-89, he developed the dominating "Hogs" offensive line that included stalwarts Russ Grimm, Joe Jacoby, Mark May, Jeff Bostic, George Starke and others. He began as the Redskins offensive coordinator in 1981 and was promoted to assistant head coach in 1983. Under Bugel's direction, the Redskins scored a then-NFL record 541 points (1983), had four 1,000-yard rushers, one 4,000-yard passer and nine 1,000-yard receivers. Washington won two Super Bowls while Bugel was with the team, following the 1982 and 1987 seasons. Bugel rejoined the Redskins organization last year, contributing evaluations as a consultant to the team during the 2003 campaign.

In 21 seasons as an NFL assistant, Bugel's teams have posted a record of 170-136 (.556 winning percentage), including 13 winning seasons and eight playoff appearances. Overall, Bugel has participated in three Super Bowls, six conference championships and 21 playoff contests.

He returns to coaching after a two-year respite, most recently spending four seasons overseeing the offensive line of the San Diego Chargers (1998-2001). He spent three seasons with the Oakland Raiders, serving as assistant head coach/offense from 1995-96 before being named head coach for the 1997 season. Before working in Oakland, he served as head coach of the Arizona Cardinals from 1990-93.

He joined the NFL in 1975, spending two seasons as the offensive line coach for the Detroit Lions. He joined the Houston Oilers in the same capacity in 1977. During his four seasons with the Oilers, the team set records in rushing and passing.

Before joining the NFL, Bugel spent time coaching at Ohio State (1974), Iowa State (1973), Navy (1969-72) and his alma mater, Western Kentucky (1964-68). While earning his degree in physical education, Bugel was an all-conference guard and linebacker. He went on to earn a master's degree in counseling, also at Western Kentucky. A Pittsburgh, PA native, Bugel was a two-way star in football at Munhall High School.

Bugel and his wife, Brenda, have three daughters: Angie, Holly and Jennifer.

Gregg Williams

Assistant Head Coach - Defense

14th NFL Season/1st Redskins

When Joe Gibbs signed back on as Redskins Head Coach, his top priority was to put together a great coaching staff. He wasted no time on the defensive side of the ball, convincing Gregg Williams to join his staff as assistant head coach, responsible for building a dominating Redskins defense.

Considered one of the brightest defensive minds in professional football, Williams brings a brand of defense based on toughness and persistence to the Redskins, as well as a proven track record for shaping NFL defensive squads into among the league's best year after year.

Williams takes over the Redskins' defensive unit after three years as head coach of the Buffalo Bills. During his tenure in Buffalo, his defenses improved tremendously over each of his three seasons. In 2003 the Bills' defense finished second in the NFL, improving from 15th in 2002 and 21st in 2001. Overall, the Bills' 2003 defensive and special teams units finished among the NFL's top-5 teams in nine categories. Buffalo finished second in the league (first in the AFC) in total defense and second in pass defense, as well as making vast improvements stopping their opponents' run game, ranking eighth in the NFL after finishing 29th overall in 2002.

During his three seasons leading the Bills, Williams' squads earned a reputation as fierce competitors who battled each week, making Ralph Wilson Stadium a destination few teams looked forward to visiting.

He took over as head coach of the Bills after 11 seasons with the Tennessee organization, including the defensive coordinator position for four seasons (1997-00). Williams proved his talent quickly within the Tennessee program, beginning his career with the team in 1990 as a defensive quality control coach.

Under his leadership in 2000, the Titans' defensive unit led the league in total defense for the first time since joining the NFL and the 191 points allowed were the third fewest in the NFL since the league adopted a 16-game schedule in 1978. The team also established the franchise's single-season records for sacks (55), fewest passing yards allowed (2,424), and fewest touchdowns allowed (17). The Titans ranked first in the AFC and second in the NFL over the 1999-00 seasons in sacks with 109 combined. Tennessee was the only team in the NFL to place in the top seven in both run (3) and pass defense (1); and over their last 37 games under Williams, the Titans' run defense allowed only three 100-yard rushers.

Before taking over as defensive coordinator for the Titans, he spent three seasons (1994-96) as linebackers coach when the franchise was in Houston, after spending the 1993 season heading up the Oilers' special teams units. During the 1993 campaign, Williams' special teams unit had the top-rated punting game and ranked sixth in kickoff return defense. From 1990-92, Williams served as the club's first quality control coordinator. In addition, Williams previously assisted coaching the Oilers' defensive backs, assisted the scout teams for practice sessions and helped the defensive coaching staff on game days.

Prior to joining the NFL, Williams worked with the University of Houston as a graduate assistant (1988-89) under former Oilers and Redskins head coach Jack Pardee. From 1984-87, Williams was the head coach at Belton (MO) High School after spending the 1980-83 seasons as an assistant coach at his hometown of Excelsior Springs (MO) High School.

A native of Excelsior Springs, MO, Williams was a quarterback and also played baseball at Northeast Missouri State, where he received his bachelor of science degree. He later earned his master's degree in education from Central Missouri State. Williams and his wife, Leigh Ann, have a daughter, Amy, and two sons, Blake and Chase.

Gregg Williams Coaching Career

1980-83 (Excelsior Springs H.S., MO), 1984-87 (Belton H.S., MO), 1988-89 (University of Houston), 1990-2000 (Houston Oilers/Tennessee Titans), 2001-03 (Buffalo Bills - Head Coach), 2004 (Washington Redskins).

Assistant Coaches

Defensive Coordinator - Defensive Line

Greg Blache

17th NFL Season
1st Redskins

Coaching: The Redskins add another impressive defensive mind to the coaching roster in Greg Blache, a proven teacher and demanding taskmaster who comes to Washington after spending the past five seasons as defensive coordinator of the Chicago Bears. He will work closely with Assistant

Head Coach Gregg Williams, and will focus special attention on the development of the Redskins defensive line.

Over the last five years, the Bears defense has seen tremendous improvement. In 2003, Blache's Chicago defense finished the season fifth in the NFC in total defense, and 14th in the NFL, the team's highest league overall-ranking since the 1998 season. During his tenure, Blache's defenses forced 138 turnovers, including 37 in 2001, the most by a Bears defense since 1990, and accounted for 13 touchdowns (2 in 1999, 4 in 2000, 5 in 2001, 1 in 2002, and 1 in 2003).

In 2002, Blache dealt with numerous injuries, leading to 11 different starting line-ups over the course of 16 games. While juggling personnel, the Bears defense continued with their attacking, aggressive style that set records during the 2001 season. They forced 64 tackles behind the line of scrimmage and reached a league plateau by forcing at least one turnover in 33 consecutive games, the second longest active streak in the NFL at the time.

In 2001, Blache molded the Bears defense into one of the top units in the league, producing the top-ranked scoring defense by allowing only 203 points in 16 games (12.7 points per game). His run defense finished second in the NFL and first in the NFC, allowing just 82.1 yards per game, while allowing only three rushes of 20 yards or more all seasons and only six rushing touchdowns.

Prior to joining the Bears, Blache served as defensive line coach for the Indianapolis Colts for five seasons (1994-98) and held the same position with the Green Bay Packers for six years (1988-93).

In addition to his pro coaching experience, Blache has held positions with several college programs. He began his coaching career as a defensive assistant at his alma mater Notre Dame in 1968, after suffering a leg injury that ended his playing career. Following his graduation in 1971, he stayed on as a graduate assistant and then as an assistant coach for the Fighting Irish for four more seasons (1972-75). He moved on to join Tulane's staff in 1976, where he coached the offensive line (1976-77), outside linebackers (1978-79) and defensive backs (1980). He then returned to Notre Dame to coach the running backs (1981), defensive line and outside linebackers (1982-83). After spending 1984-85 as defensive coordinator of the USFL's Jacksonville Bulls, he returned to the college ranks at Southern University (1986) and Kansas (1987).

Playing: Blache started his collegiate career as a defensive back for Notre Dame, but a leg injury ended his playing career prematurely.

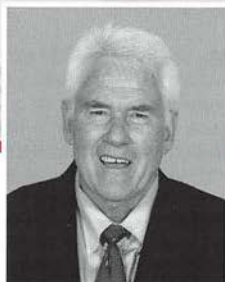

Personal: He earned his bachelor's degree in sociology and a master's degree in secondary education, both from Notre Dame. A New Orleans native, Blache and his wife, Lynn, have six children: Greg Jr., Jennifer, Christopher, Sarah, Corrine and Matthew. They live in Leesburg, VA.

Offensive Coordinator

Don Breaux

24th NFL Season
14th Redskins

Coaching: Don Breaux returns to Washington for his second tour, having coached the Redskins running backs from 1981-1993. He brings 23 years of NFL coaching experience to Joe Gibbs' 2004 staff, and a proven track record of bringing out the best abilities in his offensive players.

He comes back to Washington as offensive coordinator, looking to recreate the magic that he found alongside Joe Gibbs back in the 1980s and early 90s while he oversaw the Redskins running backs. During his time with the Redskins, he earned three Super Bowl rings, coaching three different backs in championship play: John Riggins in 1982, Timmy Smith in 1987 and Earnest Byner in 1991. Riggins was named Super Bowl XVII MVP and

Smith set a Super Bowl rushing record with 204 yards. During Breaux's tenure, his running backs produced seven 1,000-yard rushing seasons. In more than half of his NFL coaching seasons, Breaux has produced a Pro Bowl player.

After leaving the Redskins in 1993, he served as tight ends coach for the New York Jets in 1994. He went on to join the original coaching staff of the expansion Carolina Panthers in 1995, and remained with the team for eight seasons as tight ends coach. He helped tutor Wesley Walls to five Pro Bowl selections.

Prior to joining the Redskins in 1981, Breaux worked 14 years on the collegiate level with teams that made 12 post-season appearances. His resume includes time at Florida State (1966-67), Arkansas (1968-71, 1977-80), Florida (1973-74) and Texas (1975-76). He made his pro coaching debut in 1972 as running backs coach for the Houston Oilers.

Playing: Breaux experienced a stand-out career as a quarterback at McNeese State before heading to the professional ranks with Denver of the AFL in 1963 and San Diego Chargers from 1964-65.

Personal: He hails from Jennings, LA. Breaux and his wife, Harleen, have two daughters, Kara and Shiela, and make their permanent home in North Carolina.

Coaches

Quarterbacks

Jack Burns

12th NFL Season
4th Redskins

Coaching: Jack Burns re-joins the Redskins coaching staff with an extensive pedigree of molding talented offensive players in his 14 seasons in professional football. He previously coached under the Joe Gibbs-led Washington teams from 1989 to 1991 as an offensive assistant/receivers coach, guiding the famed "Posse" of Art Monk, Gary

Clark and Ricky Sanders to average 210 catches for 3,043 yards per season. The 1991 Super Bowl showcased his receivers' talents, with Gary Clark recording seven catches for 114 yards and a touchdown and Art Monk with seven catches for 113 yards.

In his second tour with the burgundy and gold, Burns will focus on the development of the Redskins quarterbacks, maximizing the abilities of veteran Mark Brunell and guiding the progress of younger talents Patrick Ramsey, Tim Hasselbeck and Gibran Hamdan. During Burns' first season in Washington, in 1989, the Redskins led the NFL in passing. Quarterback Mark Rypien had his best season that year, resulting in a Pro Bowl selection.

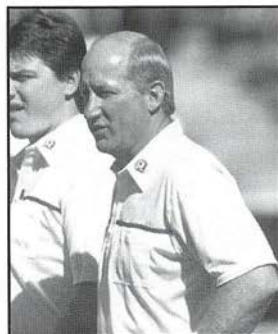

Before taking a year off in 2003, Burns was coaching with the Atlanta Falcons in several different capacities on offense. Most recently, as the Falcon's quarterbacks coach (2001-02) he worked with one of the NFL's brightest young stars in quarterback Michael Vick, Atlanta's number one-overall draft pick in 2001. Under Burns' tutelage, Vick quickly emerged into one of the NFL's most dynamic players in his first year as starter and was voted to the Pro Bowl in 2001. In 2000, Burns was the Falcons' wide receivers coach and served as the passing game/play calling coach in 1999. He began his career in Atlanta as quarterbacks coach in 1997, helping Chris Chandler earn two Pro Bowl invites during that time. He focused on the Falcons' wide receivers for the 2000 season.

Burns was offensive coordinator for the Minnesota Vikings during the 1992 and 1993 seasons, also coaching the quarterbacks. The Vikings led the league in scoring in 1992 while Pro Bowlers Cris Carter, Anthony Carter and Roger Craig flourished in Burns' system.

His college coaching resume began in Florida in 1971 and was followed by stints at Louisville (1974), Texas (1976), Vanderbilt (1977-78) and Auburn (1979-80). He entered the professional coaching ranks with the Tampa Bay Bandits under former Redskins head coach Steve Spurrier in 1981.

Playing: Burns played defensive back at Florida from 1967-70.

Personal: He and his wife, Robin, have two children: Chase and McKensie.

He earned trips to the Pro Bowl in 1990 and 1991.

He began his pro career as a tenth round selection by the Cleveland Browns in the 1984 NFL Draft (280th overall). He spent five seasons with the Browns (1984-88) before joining the Redskins (1989-93). He returned to the Browns in 1994 and finished his career spending four seasons with the Baltimore Ravens (1996-97).

Byner finished his 14-year NFL career ranked 16th on the NFL's all-time rushing list with 8,261 yards on 2,095 carries, with 56 touchdowns. He also recorded 15 career receiving touchdowns and a touchdown on a recovered fumble, totaling 72 career scores.

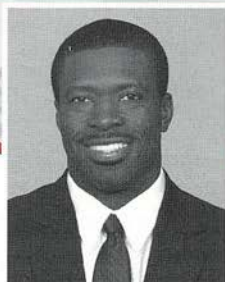

During his time in Washington and along his other stops in the NFL, Byner has always been a strong contributor in the community. While serving as director of player development in Baltimore, Byner oversaw the player programs, administered continuing education, internship and financial planning programs for the team. In addition to being named as one of the 70 Greatest Redskins in 2002, he has received numerous awards and honors for his work both during and after his playing career. In 2000, he was named as the first member of Baltimore's Ring of Honor at M&T Bank Stadium; he received the Ed Block Courage Award in 1986, the 1996 NFL Extra Effort Award, the NFLPA Unsung Hero Award in 1997 and was the Ravens recipient of the True Value NFL Man of the Year Award in 1997.

from 1984-86, and returns for his second tour after spending the past seven seasons as head strength and conditioning coach for the NFC East rival New York Giants.

During his time with the Giants, the teams under his guidance experienced minimal injuries and were conditioned to be at their best deep into the season, including their run to the Super Bowl in 2000. Prior to joining the Giants, Dunn served as strength and conditioning coach for the San Diego Chargers from 1990-96. In 1994, his peers voted him the NFL's Professional Strength and Conditioning Coach of the Year.

His first NFL head position came in 1987 when he was tapped to head-up the strength and conditioning program for the Los Angeles Raiders, where he remained three seasons. His first job in the league came in 1984 for the Washington Redskins under Coach Gibbs. Before coming to the NFL, he operated gyms in Pennsylvania and New York, after spending the 1979 season as an assistant offensive line coach at Penn State.

Quality Control - Offense

Coy Gibbs

1st NFL Season
1st Redskins

Coaching: Coy Gibbs, son of Head Coach Joe Gibbs, joins the Redskins as an offensive quality control coach, after a successful tenure as a driver on the NASCAR Busch Series circuit. He brings the same determination and work ethic to Redskins Park that he poured into auto racing, qualities that should help him mesh seamlessly with the offensive staff this season.

Gibbs recently finished his rookie season on the NASCAR Busch Series, with 34 starts and two top-10 finishes. Prior to racing on the Busch Series, he raced on the Craftsman Truck Series and finished 10th in the standings with 14 top-10 finishes in 2002. In 2001, he had two top-five finishes and seven top-10 finishes. He began racing on the Craftsman Series in 2000.

While he joins the Redskins for the first time with an official coaching title, Gibbs is extremely familiar with the work required for NFL coaching. He grew up on the sidelines of RFK Stadium and spent much of his free time assisting the Redskins staff during summer training camps and other workouts throughout the years.

Playing: Gibbs was a standout linebacker at Stanford from 1991-94. He led the team in tackles his senior season with 84 (51 solo), and was a key member of the PAC-10 co-Champion team that beat Penn State in the Blockbuster Bowl in 1992.

Personal: Gibbs and his wife, Heather, have two children: Ty and Elle.

Coaching: Rennie Simmons, yet another impressive veteran NFL assistant, comes back to the Redskins for his second tour. With a distinguished resume of his own, Simmons brings another level of experience and versatility to the Washington staff, serving in several different capacities on offense during his football coaching career.

Head Coach Joe Gibbs is more than familiar with the teaching talents of Simmons, coaching with him from 1981-93 on the sidelines of RFK Stadium, and more recently as a minority owner of the Atlanta Falcons, where Simmons spent the past seven seasons, working with the offensive line in 2003. Their history goes as far back as high school, when they both attended Santa Fe High and then went on to San Diego State to play for Coach Don Coryell.

Simmons joined the Redskins staff in 1981 as tight ends coach (1981-89), moved to coach the offensive line in 1990-91, and then the receivers in 1992-93. During those years, he was responsible for an impressive group of players and helped lead the Redskins to four Super Bowl appearances and three Championship victories. Special Teams

Danny Smith

10th NFL Season
1st Redskins

Coaching: Coach Gibbs won't hesitate to tell anyone how important he considers special teams, and how much hard work the Redskins have already put in on teams this off-season. Leading that charge is Danny Smith, who comes to Washington following a three-year stay in Buffalo working with new Assistant Head Coach Gregg Williams.

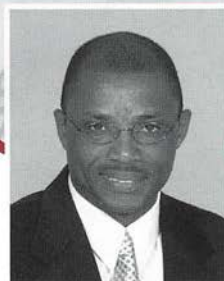

During his tenure in Buffalo, the Bills' special teams units prospered dramatically. His unit finished third in the league in kick-off coverage at the end of 2003, as well as finishing in the top-ten in field goal percentage, points per game, and both gross and net punt averages. The Redskins will look to him to build on those rankings this season.

Smith previously served as tight ends coach with the Detroit Lions during the 1999 and 2000 seasons following a four-year stint with the Philadelphia Eagles (1995-98), two seasons on special teams and two with the defensive backs.

Before joining the NFL ranks, Smith spent eight years at Georgia Tech (1987-94) where he coached several positions including running backs, wide receivers and defensive backs. He was with the Yellow Jackets when they split the 1990 Division I-A National Championship. Smith began his college coaching career as a graduate assistant at his alma mater, Edinboro State, and also spent time at The Citadel, William & Mary and Clemson. He entered the coaching ranks at his high school alma mater, Central Catholic High School, in Pittsburgh where he helped tutor former Miami Dolphins quarterback Dan Marino.

Before joining the Giants in 2002, Walker worked with the secondary of the New England Patriots, under current USC head coach Pete Carroll (1998-2000). During his tenure, defensive backs Lawyer Milloy and Ty Law each earned trips to the Pro Bowl. In 2001, he followed Carroll back to the college ranks at USC, taking over the secondary as well as being named associate head coach. During his tenure, the Trojans ranked 16th among the nation's 115 Division I-A schools in passes defended. Under his tutelage, the Trojans secondary finished the season tied for seventh in the country with 19 interceptions.

Walker began his coaching career at Mt. San Antonio Junior College (1988-92) where he was the secondary coach for four seasons before becoming defensive coordinator in 1992. He went on to coach with Utah State (1993), Brigham Young (1994), Oklahoma State (1995) and California (1996-97, Aloha Bowl 1996). Coaching: Ernie Zampese joins the Redskins staff bringing an impressive track record of crafting some of the top offenses in the NFL. He is among the most respected offensive minds in the league, and brings a wealth of experience for Joe Gibbs and his staff to draw upon.

Gibbs said upon his return to Washington that he was looking for good teachers to help bring the Redskins back to the championship level. Zampese easily fills that description, bringing 37 years of teaching football to Washington, 23 of which have been at the pro level.

It will be a reunion for Zampese and Gibbs, after the two served under Don Coryell in San Diego from 1979-82. Gibbs served as co-offensive coordinator while Zampese was wide receivers coach.

Zampese started his pro coaching career as defensive backs coach with the Chargers in 1976, and returned as wide receivers coach in 1979, after two seasons with the New York Jets (1977-78). He made his way up to offensive coordinator in 1983 and held that title for an amazing 17 years, leading the offenses of four teams along the way. He coordinated the offense in San Diego from 1983-86 before heading to coach the Los Angeles Rams in the same capacity. He led the Rams offense from 1987-93, building some of the most dangerous offenses in team history. Under his watch, the Rams offense boasted five consecutive 3,000-yard seasons (Jim Everett, 1988-92), four consecutive 1,000-yard receiving seasons (Henry Ellard, 1988-91), and five years with a 1,000-yard rusher.

In 1994, he took the offensive coordinator position with the Dallas Cowboys, where he stayed for four seasons. He helped lead the Cowboys to the Super Bowl XXX title in 1995, finishing the regular season ranked second in the league in scoring and fifth in total offense, averaging 364.0 yards per game. Zampese would help Dallas to three division titles during his tenure, along with the Super Bowl victory. He moved on to the New England Patriots in 1998, where he spent two seasons leading the Pats offensive unit. He briefly returned to the NFL in 2002 as an offensive consultant for the St. Louis Rams.

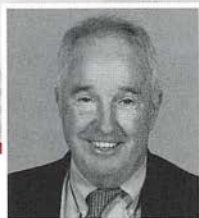

Zampese began his coaching career at Allan Hancock Junior College in Santa Maria, CA in 1962. After four seasons (1962-65), he joined the Cal Poly staff as an assistant in 1966. A year later, he moved to San Diego State and spent nine years there (1967-75) coaching the team's defensive backs. After 14 seasons in the college ranks, he made his jump to the NFL in 1976, joining the Chargers.

Playing: Zampese was the California High School Player of the Year at Santa Barbara High in 1953. He was recruited to the University of Southern California, where he played tailback from 1954-57.

Personal: A native of Santa Barbara, he earned a scholarship to Southern Cal. Rodgers' quest faded when the League decided to expand in Jacksonville and Charlotte.

Several of the major names in college and professional coaching have served under the tutelage of Rodgers, including Terry Donahue, Steve Spurrier, John Cooper and Dick Tomey. Spurrier and Gary Beban, winners of the Heisman Trophy, were coached by Rodgers, as well as Pro Football Hall of Famer John Riggins and future inductee, Reggie White.

In his second stint with the Washington Redskins, Foge Fazio returns for his second year working with the front office. Fazio first came to Washington as the team's linebackers coach in 2000, introducing Pro Bowler LaVar Arrington to the NFL. At the conclusion of the season, with the help of a strong linebacking corps, the Redskins ranked fourth in the NFL in total defense (279.6 yards per game), an improvement from 30th (356.6 yards per game) in 1999. In 2003, Fazio joins the Redskins personnel department, assisting in pro and college player evaluations.

With a resume boasting 42 years of coaching, Fazio has worked with athletes on every level: high school, college and pro. Before rejoining the Redskins in 2003, he spent two seasons as defensive coordinator with the Cleveland Browns. In 2002, the Browns reached the playoffs for the first time since 1994, with strong play from Fazio's defense. The defense allowed only one 300-yard passer all season, and finished the season ranked first in the AFC and second overall in the NFL in inside-the-20 touchdown percentage. In 2001, the Browns defense flourished under Fazio's guidance. Cleveland led the NFL in takeaways with 42, including a league-high and club-record 33 interceptions. His defense also contributed 32 points (four interception returns, one fumble return, one safety).

During his tenure, the Vikings qualified for the playoffs every year, reaching the NFC Championship Game in 1998. Fazio's 1998 defense ranked sixth in the league, allowing just 296 points while shutting out opponents in 29 of 73 quarters.

He began coaching football as an assistant at Ambridge (PA) High School in 1961-62, then moved on to Coraopolis (PA) High School in the same capacity for the next three seasons (1963-65). He jumped to the collegiate level in 1966 with a two-year stint as offensive line coach at Boston University. He then joined the Harvard University staff in 1968 as defensive line coach and helped the Crimson Tide to a 9-0-1 mark – its only undefeated season in 77 years.

Fazio returned to his hometown in 1969 as linebackers coach at the University of Pittsburgh (1969-72). He was named defensive coordinator at the University of Cincinnati, where he remained for four seasons (1973-76). The Bearcats posted their best record in 53 years with a 9-2 mark in 1976. Noble In Brief:

Noble joined the Redskins in the 2003 offseason and brought his reputation for hard work and stout defensive line play with him. Unfortunately, after a great training camp and unofficially being named a starting defensive tackle, Noble suffered a vicious knee injury in the preseason and was placed on injured reserve on August 18, 2003. He has worked extremely hard to regain service of the knee and participated in his first full-gate practice at the Redskins third offseason mini-camp. He joined the Redskins after four solid seasons with Dallas, starting 41 games and appearing in 64 with 217 stops (114 solo) and 7.5 sacks and four fumble recoveries and a forced fumble.

linemen with six tackles, his highest tackle total since recording eight at Baltimore (11/19/00).

- He had a solid individual day with four tackles, a tackle for a loss and a quarterback pressure at N.Y. Giants (12/15). Against Philadelphia (12/21), he recorded four tackles and in the season finale at Washington (12/29), he posted four tackles.

- 2001 Season: As a key contributor to the Cowboys dramatic turnaround on defense in 2001, Noble was the team's ninth leading tackler with a 56 stops. He tied for second on the club in sacks with 3.5, and he was fourth in quarterback pressures with six.

- Noble's efforts helped the Cowboys defense earn a fourth overall ranking by allowing an average of just 287.4 yards-per-game. In 2001, the Cowboys allowed 1,710 rushing yards, a figure that was 927 fewer yards than the club allowed during the 2000 season. Those numbers represented the largest turnaround by any defensive unit in the NFL in 2001

- 2000 Season: As injuries claimed the season of players all around him on the defensive line, Noble

Portis In Brief:

Portis was acquired by the Redskins in a blockbuster trade during the 2004 offseason, sending Champ Bailey to the Denver Broncos in exchange for the exceptional Pro Bowl running back. In just two seasons in the NFL, Portis has positioned his name among the NFL's elite running backs. He added to the success he found in 2002, when he won the NFL's Offensive Rookie of the Year award. In 29 career games (25 starts), Portis has rushed for 3,099 yards on 563 carries (5.5) and 29 touchdowns, while adding 678 yards receiving on 71 catches and two touchdowns. By rushing 1,591 yards in 2003 and 1,508 in 2002, Portis became only the third running back in NFL history to rush for 1,500 yards in each of his first two seasons, joining Eric Dickerson and Edgerrin James. In addition, he has rushed for more yards in his first two seasons (3,099) than all but three players in NFL history: Dickerson (3,913), James (3,262) and Earl Campbell (3,147). During Portis' first season, he ranked fourth in the NFL in rushing with a franchise rookie-record 1,508 yards and 15 touchdowns on 273 carries. He entered the NFL as a second round selection (51st overall) by the Broncos in the 2002 contests (115.8 yards per game in his 25 starts; 2,895 yards). He has played too few games to qualify for the NFL's all-time yards per game list, but his current figure would top the NFL career record of 104.3 by Jim Brown.

- He also does not yet have enough rushing attempts to qualify for the NFL's all-time yards per carry chart (min. 750), but his career figure of 5.49 yards per carry would top Franco Harris' NFL record for a running back, 5.22.
- Portis joined Eric Dickerson and Edgerrin James as the only players in NFL history to rush for at least 1,500

• Portis had 120 yards and two scores at Cincinnati (9/7) on 24 carries, earning him the NFL's FedEx Ground Player of the Week award. He also tallied five receptions for 39 yards in Week 1.

• In Week 2 at San Diego (9/14), Portis rushed for 129 yards on just 12 carries (10.8) before leaving the game for good in the first half because of a bruised sternum.

• In the home opener vs. Oakland (9/22), Portis rushed 10 times for 42 yards (4.2) with a long of 13 and caught one pass for no gain, while being played sparingly after the first quarter due to an existing sternum injury.

• Portis bounced back from a sternum injury that caused him to miss Week 4 (vs. Detroit) to rush for a then season-high 141 yards on 23 carries (6.1) and a touchdown, while adding five receptions for a career-high 79 yards (15.8), to post a then season-best 220 total yards from scrimmage, at the time the second best total of his career. He also set new careers bests with a 65-yard run from scrimmage for a touchdown, and a 72-yard reception from Rod Smith on an end-around pass, making him just the third player since 1970 to post a run and a reception of 60+ yards in the same game. The others to accomplish this feat are San Francisco's Delvin Williams in 1976 (80 & 85 vs. Washington, Nov. 7) and Herschel Walker in 1986 (84 & 84 vs. Philadelphia, Dec. 14).

• In addition, 110 of Portis' 141 yards came in the second half, giving him his second 100-yard half of the season, and fourth of his career. In Week 7 at Minnesota (10/19), he rushed for 117 yards and a touchdown on 25 carries (4.7), while adding three receptions for 43 yards (14.3).

• Two weeks later (after a bye), vs. San Diego (11/16), Portis recorded his 14th career 100-yard rushing game, tallying 106 yard on 25 carries (4.2). Versus Chicago (11/23), he ran for a then-season-high and second-best-of-his-career 165 yards on 14 carries (11.8) to put him over 1,000 yds. for the second year in a row, and caught three passes for 23 yards (7.7).

• He ran a career-high 34 times for a season-high 170 yards (5.0) and two touchdowns at Oakland (11/30), while adding a catch for 7 yards and his first career two-point conversion. Adding his 170 rushing yards to the previous week's total (165 yds. vs. Chicago) gave Portis the best two-game output of his career. His performance was also good enough to garner the NFL's FedEx Ground Player of the Week award for the second time this season.

• Portis turned in arguably his best game as a pro in a key divisional rematch vs. 11-1 Kansas City (12/7), rushing 22 times for 218 yards (9.9) and a franchise-record five touchdowns to earn the NFL's FedEx Ground Player of the Week award for the second week in a row, and third time this season. He also added two catches for 36 yards (18.0). His five rushing touchdowns tied for second most in NFL history, while his five total touchdowns tied for fourth. He became one of 12 players in NFL history to record five touchdowns in a game.

Portis' 254 total yards from scrimmage was the most in one half in the NFL since Shaun Alexander ran for 192 vs. Oakland (11/11/01). It was his third 100-yard half of the season and fifth of his career, bettering his previous high for a half (129 at San Diego, 9/7/03).

• In an overtime win vs. Cleveland (12/14) Portis rushed for 139 yards and two touchdowns on a career-high 38 carries (3.7), while also catching one pass for 6 yards. On his final carry he sprained his right knee and ankle. Portis was declared inactive at Indianapolis (12/21) and in the regular season finale at Green Bay (12/28) while still recovering from the high-ankle sprain.

• Pro Career - 2002 Season: Portis was named NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year by AP, Pro Football Weekly, Football Digest and the Touchdown Club of Columbus; NFL Rookie of the Year by The Sporting News and Sports Illustrated and named to Pro Football Weekly's All-Rookie team.

• He played in all 16 games and started each of the last 12, and ranked fourth in the NFL in rushing with a franchise rookie-record 1,508 yards and 15 touchdowns (tying the franchise rookie record) on 273 carries (franchise-record 5.52 yards per carry), with a long of 59, while also ranking fifth on the team with 33 receptions for 364 yards (11.0) and two touchdowns.

• Portis' 1,872 total yards from scrimmage ranked fifth in the AFC (6th NFL), while his 95 first downs ranked fourth in the AFC and the NFL.

- His 17 total touchdowns and 102 points both tied for third in the NFL (non-kickers) in 2002.

- His 228 rushing yards in the season-finale vs. Ariz. (12/29) were the fourth most by a rookie in NFL history, and tied for the 16th best single-game total by any player in league history.

- College/Personal: Portis earned first-team All-BIG EAST honors from the league's coaches and third-team All-America acclaim from the Associated Press his junior year. He took over the tailback duties full-time for the first time in his career as a true junior and rushed for 1,200 yards and 10 touchdowns on 220 carries (5.5 avg.), becoming only the fifth player in school history to gain more than 1,000 yards on the ground in a season.

- Portis' performance ranked No. 3 on the Hurricanes' all-time single-season list behind Edgerrin James (1,416 in 1998) and Ottis Anderson (1,266 in 1978), and he helped guide Miami to an undefeated season and a national championship with a win over Nebraska in the Rose Bowl.

- Portis' 10 rushing touchdowns and 11 total scores rank seventh on the school's single-season charts, and his eight 100-yard performances tied the school record first set by Anderson in 1978. As a sophomore, he rushed for 485 yds. and two touchdowns on 77 carries (6.3 avg.) in eight games. He also added 103 yards on five receptions (20.6 avg.).

The 48 starts, which date back to his freshman year in 2000, are also a new Cal record for an offensive linemen, surpassing OT Todd Steussie's previous school mark of 46, set in 1990-93.
- Wilson was named the 2003 recipient of the Brick Muller Award as the team's Most Valuable Offensive Linemen.
- He was the quiet leader of a veteran Bear line that produced a 1,000-yard rusher, 1,500-yard receiver and 2,900-yard passer this season, and a blocking group that produced the Pac-10's No. 1 rushing team, No. 3 scoring unit and No. 3 total offense.

2002 Season:

- Wilson was asked to move from the right to left side of the line, and responded well at left tackle as the key pass protector of quarterback Kyle Boller.
- The Bears tied for the Pac-10 lead for fewest sacks allowed (25) and Wilson's individual effort was recognized when he was awarded All-Pac-10 honorable mention notice following the season.

2001 Season:

- Wilson was one of three players who started every game on the offensive line during the season, with others being guard Scott Tercero and now-graduated tackle Langston Walker.
- He earned two team awards at season's end: the Andy Smith Award for most playing time and the Big Hit Award for most big hits during the season.

Wilson In Brief:

Wilson is a dominating offensive lineman who can either play tackle or guard, and was considered one of the best offensive linemen in the Pac-10 last year. He started 48 straight games at Cal, proving his versatility and durability. He also earned the Brick Muller Award as the team's Most Valuable Offensive Lineman. The Redskins offensive coaches put a premium on offensive line play, excelling in run blocking and protecting the quarterback. Wilson was selected for those qualities, as the Redskins hope he will be a dominating force on the offensive line for a long time. He should provide depth to an already talented offensive line that boasts bookend tackles Jon Jansen and Chris Samuels.

2000 Season:

- Wilson had an excellent freshman campaign as he graded out at 89 percent or better in 10 of his 11 starts. He was named first team Freshman All-American, and was a first team All-Pac-10 selection by Football News. He was also tabbed third team Freshman All-American by The Sporting News.

- A PrepStar All-America selection, Wilson was rated as the No. 10 offensive line prospect in the West. He ended his senior year with 16 receptions for 480 yards and two touchdowns at a tight end.
- He helped the team rebound from a 1-8 season as a junior to a 10-1 mark and win the Evergreen League co-championship as a senior.
- He was also an excellent prep basketball player who helped his team to a No. 3 finish in the state (Division V) as a junior and was a first team all-state selection as a senior (Division V).
- Wilson had one of the more interesting college summer jobs, spending the 2000 summer as a garlic harvester.

2002 - DARRELL GREEN'S FINAL SEASON

#28 Cornerback Texas A&I

First round draft pick by Washington in 1983 (28th overall)

Final Game: A 20-14 victory over the Dallas Cowboys at FedExField 12/29/02

Veteran cornerback Darrell Green, named in 2002 as one of the 70 Greatest Redskins of all time, completed his 20th and final season in the NFL and with the Washington Redskins. Green won over legions of fans in the NFL and the Washington D.C. metro area with his heart, play-making ability and dependability. Also known for his strong community involvement, Green has played an instrumental role in the rich tradition of the Washington Redskins. With Green on the roster, the Redskins have compiled a win/loss record of 177-141-1, a 55.7 winning percentage. BRUCE SMITH SACKED HISTORY

#78

Defensive End
Virginia Tech

Height: 6-4

Weight: 265

Birthdate: 6/18/63

On December 7, 2003, in a victory over the New York Giants, Redskins defensive end Bruce Smith sacked quarterback Jesse Palmer and surpassed NFL great Reggie White for sole possession of the NFL career sack record.

Smith was selected by the Buffalo Bills as the first overall pick in the 1985 NFL Draft. As a rookie in 1985, Smith led Buffalo in sacks (6.5) and was named AFC Defensive Rookie of the Year. He has sacked 75 different quarterbacks during his career, with former NY Jets passer Ken O'Brien leading the list, having been pulled down by Smith 17.5 times. Over his 19-year tenure in the NFL, Smith recorded career highs of 120 tackles (1996), 54 quarterback pressures (1996), 19 sacks (1990), and four fumble recoveries (1985). He is the only #1 overall draft pick to be selected to 10+ Pro Bowls.

REDSKINS MILESTONES

'Redskin' Through the Years...

Red Cloud. Red Thunder. Red Eagle. Redlands. Red mud.

"The term redskin, applied by Europeans to Algonquians in general and the Delawares in particular," says the Reader's Digest in its book America's Fascinating Indian Heritage, "was inspired not by their natural complexion but by their fondness for vermilion makeup, concocted from fat mixed with berry juice and minerals that provided the desired color." The men "would streak their faces and bodies with bright red ochre and bloodroot," adds the Reader's Digest.

Indians painted their skin for decorative and ceremonial purposes. "Red is generally accepted as being one of the colors most easily available to and most used by Indians," as Ronald P. Koch states in his book Dress Clothing of the Plains Indians.

The Cardinals won the coin toss, and drove to the Redskins 15, only to have Kevin Butler miss. The Skins' Scott Blanton booted the apparent 38-yard game-winner, but a holding penalty forced a retry from 48 that went wide left. Arizona then tried a 29-yarder that missed, only the Redskins were offside. Butler's third attempt was good from 32-yards.

70th Anniversary Season

The 70 Greatest Redskins in team history were announced in June 2002 by a blue-ribbon panel, selected to choose the Washington Redskins' leading on-field contributors in celebration of the NFL franchise's 70th anniversary. The 70 Greats were honored in a weekend of festivities, October 25-27, culminating in a special half-time ceremony during the Redskins victory over the Indianapolis Colts. The celebration reunited the 70 Greats with a black-tie gala event, an alumni and media brunch, dinner party and pre-game barbeque at FedExField.

Spanning the entire history of the team since its founding in Boston in 1932, the 70 Greatest Redskins encompass three head coaches and 67 players. They present a tableau of accomplishments from the franchise's very beginnings with Turk Edwards and Cliff Battles selected from the Redskins' 1932 inaugural roster. Across the generations, the group included two active players - cornerback Darrell Green, in his 20th and final year as a Redskin in 2002, and Brian Mitchell, who played 10 years as a Redskin running back and kick/punt return specialist.

Head Coaches George Allen, Joe Gibbs and Ray Flaherty were selected for the 70 Greatest Redskins team because of their record of achievements, not the least being Gibbs' taking the team to four Super Bowls and winning three of them. The Most Valuable Players of those three championships also appear on the list: quarterbacks Doug Williams and Mark Rypien and running back John Riggins, as well as quarterback Joe Theismann, who commanded the team the year Riggins won his MVP award.

There are 92 Super Bowl appearances among the 70 Greats, with 47 going once and 45 playing in more than one. Twenty-nine members of the squad possess one Super Bowl ring; 26 have more than one. For the years prior to the Super Bowl, members of the 70 made 18 World Championship appearances; six participated in the team's World Championship victories in 1937 and 1942.

Longevity is represented in Green, Sammy Baugh, Monte Coleman, Jeff Bostic, Dave Butz, Chris Hanburger, Len Hauss, Art Monk, Charley Taylor and Don Warren, who amassed a cumulative 150 Redskin years, nearly one-quarter of the 644 playing years amassed by the entire group. Every Redskin in the Pro Football Hall of Fame (who played more than three years with the team) is represented. Every player and coach in the team's Ring of Fame is on the list, as well.

There are 41 Greats who primarily played offense, 23 who primarily played defense and three special teams representatives: kicker Mark Moseley, punter Mike Bragg and return specialist Mike Nelms.

Colleges and universities throughout the country are represented, with Arizona State, Clemson, Nebraska, North Carolina, Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Washington State contributing two players apiece.

The blue-ribbon selection panel consisted of former CNN anchor Bernard Shaw; Redskins alum Bobby Mitchell; U.S. Senator George Allen of Virginia, son of Redskins Hall of Fame Coach George Allen; Washington broadcasting legend Ken Beatrice; Noel Epstein, editor of several Washington Post histories of the team; former Under Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco; Phil Hochberg, who retired following the 2001 season following 38 years as a team stadium announcer; Pro Football Hall of Fame historian Joe Horrigan; WRC-TV Sports Director George Michael; WTEM Sports Director Andy Pollin; Steve Sabol, president of NFL Films; and WRC-TV anchor Jim Vance.

FedExField®

FedExField is the premier stadium in the National Football League. Located in Landover, MD, the privately financed FedExField was completed in a record 17 months and hosted the Redskins home opener September 14, 1997 — a 19-13 overtime win against the Arizona Cardinals.

The stadium is located on a 200-acre site and is the largest stadium in the NFL with 91,665 seats — over 11,000 more than the next largest — the Meadowlands in New Jersey. FedExField is one of just two stadiums with three tiers of luxury suites, a total of 243. Suites are equipped with restrooms, a refrigerator, televisions, a lounge area, two rows of seats, and bar stools.

FedExField increased the Redskins attendance capacity by over 40% when the team left RFK Stadium after 1996. Nevertheless, the Redskins have sold out every home game for the past 37 seasons (286 regular season and 13 playoff games) including all 57 contests at FedExField. All eight games for the 2004 season are sold out as well as both preseason contests.

Construction on FedExField began in March 1996 and cost $250 million. The following year, $30 million was spent to create a 170,000 square-foot atrium encircling the entire stadium making the Joe Gibbs Club Level the most spectacular in the league.

When Daniel M. Snyder became the Redskins owner in July 1999, one of his first tasks was to make additional improvements to FedExField. Immediately, millions were invested in such projects as replacing metal rails with glass rails in order to provide unobstructed sight lines in the stadium bowl. The sound system was significantly upgraded and the parking lot was re-structured and re-routed to greatly improve the traffic flow on game days.

Since his inaugural season, Snyder has spent more than $100 million to enhance FedExField. Over the past five seasons, numerous additions have been made. Escalators have been added for fans seated in the stadium's upper tier. The spectacular new Owner's Club Suite Level has been created. A 3,000-foot circumference wind screen has been installed around the top of the stadium to improve fan comfort. A sophisticated radiant heating system has been installed on the loge level. Seats have been added to the upper, lower and loge levels. The Field Club section of seating was added immediately around the playing field, dubbed the "dream seats," given they put fans almost on top of the action. The Hall of Fame Store, the original Official Redskins Store, has been remodeled and completely re-merchandised with new Redskins products. Finally, the field has been improved and re-sodded.

During the off-season and while the Redskins are away during the football season, FedExField hosts a variety of special events. Last year, the stadium was host to two high profile concerts: Metallica's Summer Sanitarium Tour and rock legend Bruce Springsteen and his E Street Band. Coming up this season, FedExField welcomes the 2004 Black Coaches Association Classic between USC and Virginia Tech, and the inaugural Prince George's Classic, matching up Howard University against Alcorn State. For more information regarding FedExField events, check out Redskins.com.

On September 14, 1997, the Redskins opened their new stadium with a thrilling 19-13 overtime victory over the Arizona Cardinals in front of a record crowd of Washington fans.

In their first game at their new home, the Redskins were forced into overtime when Cardinals kicker Kevin Butler connected on a 47-yard field goal to tie the score with just two seconds remaining.

The Cards won the toss to start the extra period, but rookie defensive lineman Kenard Lang stripped Arizona running back Leeland McElroy of the football, and Derek M. Smith recovered for the Skins on the 35-yard line. Quarterback Gus Frerotte was sacked on first down, but on the next play he found Michael Westbrook in the endzone for a game-winning 40-yard TD.

Welcome to Redskins Park

Rising from a former dairy farm and set on a picturesque 162 acres of land in Ashburn, Virginia, Redskins Park is home to the Gerald S. Snyder Training Facility, the year-round headquarters of the Washington Redskins.

The team has called Redskins Park home since August of 1992, enjoying a private haven away from urban distractions. The 65,000 square-foot complex sits adjacent to four football fields and features strength training and sports medicine facilities, offices and meeting rooms for players, coaches and front office staff, and accommodations for the media. The public areas of the building feature large hallways, high ceilings with skylights to provide natural lighting, and numerous trophy cases displaying the team's rich history and tradition.

Located in Loudoun County, recently named the fastest-growing area of the United States, Redskins Park is tucked away from highways and other office buildings. Visitors enter a bright, spacious lobby that opens out to the second-story balcony overlooking an impressive back yard of three carefully groomed natural grass practice fields and an additional astro-turf surface.

The downstairs half of the building is dedicated to football operations, including player and staff locker rooms, a newly enhanced strength and conditioning center, the equipment room, athletic training rooms and video studio. The athletic training facilities include an x-ray room and dentist office, as well as private examination rooms for the medical staff that attends to the staff throughout the year. The lower level also has a racquetball court, a half-court basketball gym and a catering kitchen. The basketball court is converted to a dining hall during the team practice season. A new state-of-the-art players' lounge and television studio were added in 2004, providing a player relaxation area and a place for taping the daily interviews fans throughout the country see on local and national TV.

One side of the upper floor consists of coaches' and personnel offices and a large, 105-seat multipurpose auditorium, used for team meetings, press conferences, and film sessions. The other side of the building houses offices for the club's accounting, marketing, public relations, publishing, Redskins charitable foundation and administrative offices. A first-floor media room has individual cubicles and workspace for beat reporters and visiting media. The media room, auditorium, and locker room are wired for direct television uplink.

Gerald S. Snyder Training Facility

There's a new look at Redskins Park with the installation of a fountain in memory of Gerald S. Snyder, a co-owner of the team who died last year at 69. The 16' high, 30' in diameter glass octagon stands as a greeting and a tribute.

Beloved father of Redskins owners Daniel Snyder and Michele Snyder, Gerry was an ultimate Redskins fan.

He began his lifelong love affair with the team while stationed at Fort Meade, and intensified it in the late 60s, when he was hired by the book department of The National Geographic Society, and the Snyders moved to the Washington area.

Without access to Redskins tickets, the Snyders began a Sunday ritual, which they called their "Redskins Picnic." When Daniel Snyder turned 2, his father bought him a Sonny Jurgensen jersey and Redskins belt buckle, which he would wear for Sunday games. He'd sit beside his father on a blanket in front of their old black-and-white TV, eating his mother's famous Redskins Chili and cheering on their team.

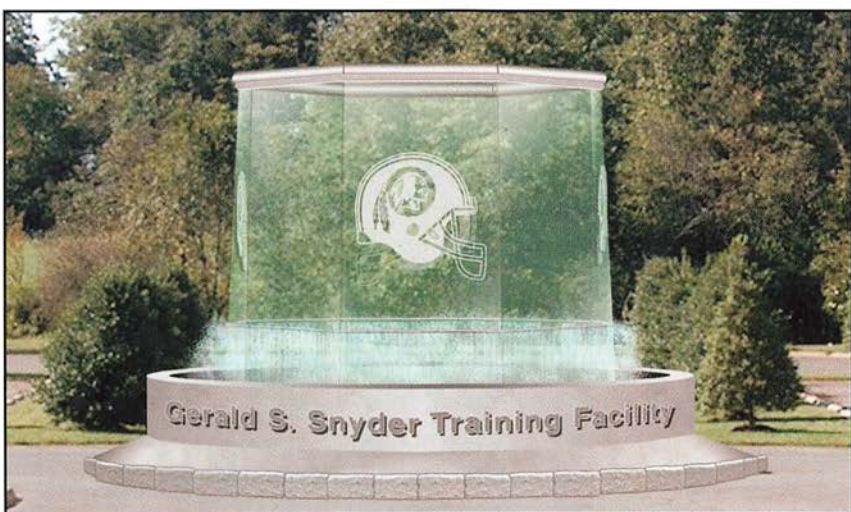

In 1971, when Dan was 7, his father took him to his first Redskins game at RFK Stadium, a rite of passage for both father and son.

When Dan bought the Redskins in 1999, Gerry quickly and happily dipped into the equity he'd realized from selling his shares of Snyder Communication to join his son in buying the team. "My father was my best friend," Dan Snyder said at his father's funeral.

Gerry will be remembered for his kindness, gentleness and his great love for his family and friends. His minority ownership in the team was passed on to his wife Arlette, who will maintain it for the family. His love of the Redskins is his legacy to us all.

Washington Redskins Training Camp

The Washington Redskins will open 2004 Training Camp on July 31st at Redskins Park, the team's year-round practice complex in Ashburn, Virginia. This will be the third year the team has chosen to stay home to prepare for the NFL season, taking advantage of the Redskins' state-of-the-art training resources and facilities.

Training camp is an annual ritual in the NFL, an opportunity for fans from all over the country to come see their favorite Redskins players in action on the practice field, and get a first glimpse of the newly signed free agents and draft picks. With the numerous off-season additions to the Redskins roster, not to mention the return of Head Coach Joe Gibbs and an impressive new coaching staff, fans will see a new team take the field in 2004.

During the first two weeks of camp, a number of practices are open to fans, free of charge. Visitors are encouraged to bring lawn chairs or blankets, as they will be able to sit along the hill overlooking the four playing fields. After each practice, fans will have the opportunity to gather autographs and take photos of their favorite players as they walk off the field to the locker rooms.

Extensive media attention is expected, and to assist visiting press in their coverage, the Redskins provide a media tent and workroom equipped with power inputs and phone lines for data transmission. Credentialed media will have additional access to the players and practice areas, and can coordinate interviews through the Redskins public relations department. All media attending Redskins Training Camp must obtain credentials to gain access to the grounds. Media should fax requests on company letterhead to the attention of Michelle Tessier at 703-726-7086, before arriving to their first practice at Redskins Park.

The Redskins first held training camp at Redskins Park in 2000, opening the complex to visitors for the first time in franchise history. Thousands of fans from all over the Washington, D.C. area, and beyond, were able to visit, watch their favorite players just steps from the practice fields, gather autographs and take part in the Redskins experience. After a two-year hiatus, with camp being held at Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pennsylvania, the Redskins returned to Ashburn to get ready for the 2003 season.

Dates: The Redskins report to camp on July 31st and will conduct public practices through August 11th. Fan Appreciation Day is scheduled for Saturday, August 7th, and will include special performances by the Washington Redskins Cheerleaders and the acclaimed Redskins Marching Band. For a detailed practice schedule, please visit Redskins.com for more information, including updated team news, Training Camp directions and answers to frequently asked questions. Ample parking will be available to all fans visiting Redskins Park at no cost.

NFL Kick-Off Weekend Hall of Fame Game

For the second year in a row, the Washington Redskins have been chosen to kick-off the NFL season in front of a national, primetime audience. This year, Washington heads to Canton, Ohio, where the team will take on the Denver Broncos as part of the annual Hall of Fame Weekend celebration.

This will be the Redskins third appearance in the Hall of Fame Game, previously defeating the Cincinnati Bengals (17-9) in 1975, and the Buffalo Bills (31-6) in 1989. Head Coach Joe Gibbs will become the second Hall of Fame member to coach a team in the Hall of Fame Game. (The other was Paul Brown with Cincinnati in 1975.)

The game will be broadcast on ABC's Monday Night Football on August 9 at 8:00 p.m. ET.

Washington Redskins Stats Crew

An integral part of every Redskins game at FedExField is the dedicated staff of statisticians and assistants that monitor every snap, tackle, run, pass and catch that takes place on the playing field. The Redskins stats crew is responsible for generating official game stats, compiling and inputting play-by-play information into a computer database that quickly makes the data available for use by team coaches, the NFL and the media. Jon Stratton heads up the group, beginning his 18th year of service. His crew is among the League's best, with more than 100 years of combined experience.

Washington Redskins Grounds Crew

Under the supervision of Head Groundskeeper Don Follett, the playing surface at FedExField is among the very best in the NFL, and has earned Follett numerous invitations to prepare Super Bowl and Pro Bowl playing fields. The Redskins Grounds Crew is responsible for ensuring that the playing fields at FedExField and Redskins Park are in smooth, safe condition and able to withstand the rigors of NFL football. They work year-round operating the high-tech irrigation system under FedExField, fertilizing, mowing and chalking the field to keep it in top playing condition. During the off-season in 2004, Follett and his crew re-sodded the fields at Redskins Park, preparing for the start of the new football year with Head Coach Joe Gibbs. The Grounds Crew plays an important role in Redskins community initiatives as well, helping the Washington Redskins Leadership Council renovate the football fields of local high schools throughout the region. The program has been so successful that the NFL is encouraging similar programs in other NFL markets.

First Ladies of Football

Each year, hundreds of talented young women audition for the chance to cheer on the Washington Redskins players and entertain fans along the sidelines of FedExField. Since their inception in 1962, the First Ladies of Football have brought Redskins fans to their feet, both on and off the field.

While the Washington Redskins Cheerleaders are most visible to Redskins fans during the games at FedExField, they also find themselves working weekends and holidays year-round to assist charity and volunteer organizations, fundraisers, and educational foundations. Each year, working with the Department of Defense and Armed Forces Entertainment, members of the Washington squad travel to military bases around the world. As a part of Operation Iraqi Freedom they visited service men and women in Iraq and Italy. Most recently, the cheerleaders traveled to New York for Fleet Week.

Over the last five years performing for U.S. troops, the Washington Redskins Cheerleaders Variety Show has grown from a small holiday performance to a musical extravaganza that incorporates the latest in funk, rock-n-roll, swing, and jazz, as well as contemporary and country music, with some audience participation thrown in to ensure the show has something for everyone.

Washington Redskins Alumni

The Washington Redskins Alumni Association formed in 1958, the first such alumni group in the country. The organization spearheaded the Alumni movement among former professional football players and was the model for other alumni groups that later formed in all NFL cities.

Today, Redskins alumni continue to make their presence known throughout the community. As a very active chapter of the national NFL Alumni Association, they have as their motto "Caring for Kids". In addition to the numerous events and appearances Redskins alums participate in throughout the year, they hold two major fundraising events of their own: The Redskins Alumni Charity Golf Classic, now in its 25th year, and the annual Washington Redskins Welcome Home Luncheon, now in its 43rd year.

The Alumni have an office at Redskins Park and can be reached at 703-726-7100.

Washington Redskins Marching Band

The Redskins Marching Band begins its 66th year leading sell-out crowds at FedExField in the team fight song, "Hail to the Redskins." With bandmaster Billy Ball directing, it is one of just two pro football marching bands still in existence today. The all-volunteer ensemble formed in 1937, when George Preston Marshall brought the team to Washington, D.C., with the goal of entertaining fans from the moment they walked into the stadium until the time they left to go home. For more than six decades, the Marching Band has taken great pleasure in entertaining fans with their pre-game and halftime shows. Over the years, the Band has marched between train stations and stadiums before notable games, down Broadway before a New York Giants game in the early 1960s, and around the concourse of Tampa Stadium during Super Bowl XVIII.

HAIL TO THE REDSKINS

THE REDSKINS FIGHT SONG

*"Hail to the Redskins!
Hail Victory!*

*Braves on the warpath,
Fight for old D.C.!*

*Run or pass and score
we want a lot more!*

*Beat 'em Swamp 'em Touchdown
let the points soar!*

*Fight on, Fight on,
Til you have won,*

Sons of Wash-ing-ton!"

On August 17, 1938, "Hail to the Redskins" made its debut as the official fight song of the Washington Redskins. The song was written by renowned band leader Barnee Breeskin and the lyrics were penned by Hollywood movie star Corinne Griffith, the wife of team founder and owner, George Preston Marshall. Gettin' Down With the Funky Four

The Funky Four are members of the Washington Redskins Marching Band percussion section who have become a fixture of the FedExField game day experience. Members Harry Jackson, Kenny Scott, Thomas Clarke, and Michael Dorsey entertain the FedExField crowd with uniquely choreographed dance routines, performed to "Play that Funky Music" by Wild Cherry during the third quarter of every home game. In addition to their performances at Redskins games, the Funky Four are in demand around town, appearing at charity and community events throughout the metro area including the Redskins Golf Classic at Lansdowne Country Club, benefiting the Washington Redskins Leadership Council.

Meet the Hoggettes

Another trademark of FedExField game day is a sighting of "The Hogettes," a highly spirited group of Redskins fans that dress in polka dot skirts, brightly colored wigs, plastic hog snouts, and enjoy extra-large cigars. "The Hogettes" started appearing at Redskins games in 1983, named after Washington's popular offensive line from the 80's, "The Hogs". The group can be found at FedExField for every home Redskins game, and sometimes in the stands on road trips. The members are extremely active in the community as well, making appearances at golf tournaments, telethons, and parades to support children's charities. "The Hogettes" received the ultimate die-hard fan honor in 1999, with an induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame, in the Hall of Fans exhibit in Canton, Ohio.

FedExField Attendance Records

In 2003, the Washington Redskins established a new NFL record for the fourth season in a row by playing in front of 1,205,958 fans in their 16 games, breaking last year's NFL record 1,182,596. Washington's home attendance for the 2003 season came to 643,997. The NFL's top single season mark in front of a home crowd is 647,424 – set by the Redskins in 2000.

Washington fans set their own team record on October 12, 2003 against the reigning Super Bowl Champion Tampa Bay Buccaneers. 85,490 fans attended the contest – the most ever at a Redskins game. The eight-game attendance average at FedEx Field was 80,500 for the 2003 season. The NFL average was 66,688.

Washington Redskins Radio Network

The Washington Redskins can be heard throughout five states on flagship station 106.7 FM WJFK. The trio of former Redskins quarterback and Hall of Famer Sonny Jurgensen, Redskins Hall of Fame linebacker Sam Huff and newcomer Larry Michael will carry all the action throughout the 2004 season. The Redskins Radio Network stretches beyond Virginia into Maryland, the Carolinas and Pennsylvania.
